

Elog - Bug #16125

Response is already committed on redirect

Description
The authentication filter is throwing an IllegalStateException whenever someone logs into the elog. The filter is complaining the the response is already committed when the user is redirected after a successfull login. The user does not see this and it is transparent to them. However, the logger is getting filled up. I'm already wrapping the response to override isCommitted() so I'm not sure what is happening.

- Status changed from Assigned to Resolved

Found an errant semi colon! Fixed on next restart.

- Status changed from Resolved to Remission

Still seeing this.

If the HttpServletResponse getWriter() method is called then the response is committed and then the sendError() method throughs this error. I switched all statements to getOutputStream() so that I can still use sendError(). Hopefully this fixes the problem.
