

FHICL Configuration Manager - Bug #21388

issue with parsing?

11/15/2018 11:53 PM - Pavel Murat

| | | | |
|------------------------|----------|------------------------|------------|
| Status: | New | Start date: | 11/15/2018 |
| Priority: | Normal | Due date: | |
| Assignee: | | % Done: | 0% |
| Category: | | Estimated time: | 0.00 hour |
| Target version: | | Spent time: | 0.00 hour |
| component: | base | SSI Package: | |
| First Occurred: | | Stakeholders: | |
| Occurs In: | | Co-Assignees: | |
| Scope: | Internal | Categorization: | - |
| Experiment: | Mu2e | | |

Description

Dear developers,

I wonder how difficult would it be to make the fhicl parser to handle correctly the example below. Strictly speaking, when it comes to parsing the line marked as offending, the table c.b is already defined, and there is absolutely no reason for the parser to choke at that point.

-thanks, Pasha

a.b : {} c : { @table::a b.d : 10 # offending line

}
