This is a difference listing between two versions of a latex source file in a git repository.
There are two issues.
First, there is a pull down menu to select inline vs side by side viewing. Only inline seems to work.
The other issue is that I would like to print this file with the colorization that I see on the screen and sensible font sizes. When I print from this page the listings get turned into hard-to-parse simple text. I also received this diff in email when the changes were pushed. When I try to print from email I get the colorization and the formatting but the font sizes are shrunk to unreadable - the full listing occupies a little more than 2 pages.
Any ideas?
